For the past two decades, painter and installation artist Lisa Ariotti has worked at the intersection of fine art, architecture, and design.

Her latest Collection "Monolith" takes a new trajectory toward minimalism with an emphasis on materiality.

Starting with paper and moving to metal, and Lucite, she continues to transform the act of painting into an act of building with translucent layers and amorphic shapes that open into a matte black void.

With the Monolith Series, the circumstances of their making are registered upon them, as they evolve in matter, invention, and thought.
